FOREWORD

Consumer Sourcebook for the Disabled is intended to meet the needs of disabled consumers who wish to be able to locate up-to-date, comprehensive and reliable reading material on food, clothing, shelter, aids to mobility and services that facilitate work and leisure.

There are more than 600 articles, books, and audio-tapes listed, covering most aspects of daily living except aids of a medical nature or those used in the medical treatment of disability. The emphasis is on information that will enhance the normal functioning of persons with a disability and encourage them to use standard consumer products and services.

To increase the usefulness of this guidebook, we have added short descriptions to some of the reference items. We have tried to emphasize Canadian material, but useful American and British material has been included as well. Some references to local products and services have been included in order to focus consumer attention on possibilities and opportunities available.

The items listed in this sourcebook are available for loan through public libraries. Additional information or copies of publications may also be obtained by writing to the addresses listed. Audio-tapes or publications in braille are available in limited quantities from the Canadian Institute for the Blind or other organizations specifically mentioned.

Titles are indexed in the language of publication, i.e., English language documents are indexed in English, French language documents are indexed in French.

It is hoped that this Consumer Sourcebook will assist consumers who are disabled to achieve greater independence and fuller participation in everyday Canadian life.

PREFACE

Sources d'informations du consommateur handicapé se propose de répondre aux besoins des consommateurs handicapés et d'être apte à localiser des lectures récentes, complètes et sérieuses sur l'alimentation, l'habillement, le logement, les moyens qui facilitent la mobilité et les services qui rendent le travail et les loisirs plus faciles.

Cette "Sources d'informations" contient une liste de plus de 600 articles, livres et bandes magnétiques, qui couvrent la plupart des aspects de la vie quotidienne, à l'exception d'aide de nature médicale ou utilisée dans le traitement médical d'un handicap. Il accorde en outre une importance particulière aux renseignements qui amélioreront le fonctionnement normal des handicapés et les encourageront à utiliser des produits et services courants de consommation.

Pour améliorer l'utilité de cette "Sources d'informations", nous avons décrit brièvement quelques-uns des documents de référence. Nous nous sommes efforcés de mettre l'accent sur le matériel canadien, mais sans négliger pour autant les documents américains ou britanniques utiles. Des références aux produits et services offerts localement ont été inclus afin d'attirer l'attention des consommateurs sur les possibilités qui leur sont accessibles.

Les documents figurant dans "Sources d'informations" peuvent être empruntés par l'intermédiaire des bibliothèques publiques. Cette brochure contient aussi une liste d'adresses utiles où il est possible d'écrire pour obtenir des renseignements additionnels ou un exemplaire des publications. L'Institut national canadien pour les aveugles ou d'autres organismes mentionnés disposent de quantités limitées de bandes magnétiques ou de publications en braille.

Les titres sont répertoriés dans leur langue de publication; c'est-à-dire que dans l'index les documents en anglais sont indiqués en anglais et les documents français, en français.

Nous espérons que cette "Sources d'informations" aidera les consommateurs handicapés à parvenir à une plus grande indépendance et à participer davantage à la vie quotidienne des canadiens.
